SHORT BIOGRAPHY

Edin Liđan is a highly accomplished mathematician with a diverse academic background. He earned his PhD in Mathematics from the University of Montenegro, focusing on topological characteristics of generalized polyomino tiling. Prior to this, he completed a Master's degree in Mathematics and Computer Sciences at the University of Zenica.

With a commitment to education, dr. Edin has held various roles, including Assistant Professor at International Burch University and Head of Didactical and Methodical Practice at the University of Bihać. He has also been actively involved in research, publishing extensively in areas such as algebra, algebraic topology, and combinatorics.

Dr. Edin's passion for teaching extends beyond the university setting, as evidenced by his experience as a Professor of Mathematics in a high school. His dedication to promoting mathematics education is further demonstrated through his involvement in projects aimed at making early mathematics learning engaging and accessible. Dr. Edin has received recognition for his contributions, including awards and letters of thanks from educational institutions and associations.

In addition to his academic and teaching pursuits, Dr. Edin has presented his research at various international conferences and workshops. His commitment to advancing mathematical knowledge is evident in his continuous participation in professional development activities and engagement in mathematical events and competitions.
